

Evaluation sheet for white striping resources

We should be most grateful if you could find the time to evaluate these resources, whether or not you find them useful. Comments from teachers, youth workers and other educationalists are most helpful when we come to update our resources or design new ones. Evaluations from school students are also much appreciated.

If you have only seen or used some of the resources, please just fill those parts in (eg don't worry if you haven't seen the film). A dash in the first box means you haven't seen it yet. A quick response is particularly appreciated since we will be editing these resources shortly.

1. Which resources do you expect to use?

4. Space for any further general comments and suggestions for improvement

If students have carried out a supermarket investigation, please tell us how they got on.
Were there any issues understanding the concepts which we could explain better?

5. Please suggest any additional resources which would be useful (NB We are considering one or more short films and tablet-based resources)

6. If you use the resource, are you likely to

(please tick as appropriate)

- Use the pictures in the worksheet for students to identify white striping
- Encourage some students to check out chicken fillets in a local supermarket
- Buy a representative sample of intensive and higher welfare chicken fillets to conduct the experiment in the classroom (or for simple observation)
